One told me I have to show my photos on flickr and i made that choice to show my work. I like to be there, it's a very democratic way to show my work, the selection in there is about merit, quality and no filter, so it's wonderful.

What would you say about your work, how would qualify it?

I was always interested in how a picture can say things, a strong communication built on knowledge or quickly shot where you have the whole world represented. What i want to express is my world feelings of the human beings with joy, pain, eros and i represent all this with light, darkness, which i use carefully and after having thought about it a lot.
